

Sociological Theories: The Tradition and Current Notions, part II 2022

Dr hab. Slawomir Kapralski, Prof. UP

The structure of the course follows and reinterprets Jeffrey Alexander's conception of "mythologies" or paradigms which are at the background of particular theories. It starts with the presentation of the destruction of the "Parsonian" model of the social world in the 1960s followed by the attempts to reconstruct structural functionalism, revival of the alternative theoretical perspectives and the development of the new ones. Then we will analyze four groups of theories: (1) those which assume that "the Social" is what people think it is (Symbolic Interactionism, Phenomenological inspirations, Ethnomethodology), (2) those which assume that "the Social" is not what people think it is (Habermas and Critical Theory), (3) those which assume that "the Social is what it is (Luhmann, Münch, Alexander), and (4) those which assume that there is no "social" and proclaim the end of society and history (various branches of Postmodernism with particular reference to Baudrillard). In the end of the course we will discuss the return of "the Social" and history in various theoretical conceptualizations.

The course will be divided in seven meetings, the first one will be 2 hour long, the other – 3 hour long. Starting with the third meeting the lecture will be interwoven with students' presentations.

Requirements:

Participation in classes is mandatory. One can miss one 3 hour meeting without consequences. Absence in two 3 hour meetings will lead to writing a "penalty essay" of 1,500 words on a topic given by the lecturer, to be delivered together with course essay. Absence in three 3 hour meetings means that the absentee is not allowed to complete the course.

All those who take the course for credit will give a presentation/short lecture on a topic agreed with the lecturer. The presentation will include a review of an assigned reading.

Course essay of 3,000 words, to be delivered at the end of the first teaching period, on a topic selected from the list provided by the lecturer in one of the first meetings.

Please consult the MA Handbook regarding the submission of the course essay and any other questions you may be interested in.

Meeting 4.

The “social” is what it is? From Functionalism to Neofunctionalism. Jeffrey Alexander, Paul Colomy. The “German Branch”: Niklas Luhmann, Richard Münch.

Post-Parsonian period in sociology. Fields of reconstruction and continuation (action, order, equilibrium, ideology). Neofunctionalist research programs in sociology of culture (Alexander) and in sociology of social change (Colomy). Luhmann: types of systems and their modes of reproduction; temporality of social systems; communication as an elementary unit of sociological analysis. Richard Münch: structure—action dilemma. General theory of action: symbolic complexity and action contingency.

Meeting 5.

There is no “social”? Postmodernism and social theory.

Postmodernism as a way out, as an attitude, as a transition. Postmodernism and modernity. Postmodernism and ambivalence. Deconstructing narratives in the era of simulation (Derrida—Lyotard—Baudrillard). Postmodern conceptions of social sciences: discontinuity and dissemination. Postmodern deconstruction of “society”: the end of agency, the end of resistance, the end of history.

Meeting 7

Evolution of the postmodernist debate: from deconstruction to social constructivism?

Is society more than a “text”? Bauman and the ethical components of social life. Touraine: the return of social agency. Luhmann: society as the (im)possibility of communication. Bourdieu: self-perpetuation of society through culture. Towards a theoretical approach to culture in contemporary sociology. Culture and identity. Castells: network society and identities of resistance. Appadurai: ethnoscapas and deterritorialization of identity. Bauman: liquid modernity and fragmentation of identities. Bhabha: postcolonial theory and hybridization of identities. Outhwaite and Ray: convergence and postcommunism. Krastev and Holmes: anti-liberal backlash in Eastern Europe.
